SPEECH OF
HON. WILLIAM B. SHEPARD,
Delivered in the Senate, November 27th, upon the Resolutions submitted by himself:

I have said that North Carolina would be more seriously injured by this walling-in policy of the Federal Government, than any of the Southern States, and this will be apparent if we would attentively consider our situation. North Carolina has but little territory peculiarly adapted to the profitable occupation of slave labor, much of her soil is already worn down by constant cultivation and needs the resuscitation of rest and economical and skillful husbandry, which can never take place when burdened by a superabundant population of slaves.

In 40 years from this time, unless the law of population is changed in our case, North Carolina will contain more than 860,000 slaves, nearly all of them agricultural laborers drawing a scanty support from a worn out and impoverished soil. The first effect of this great increase of slaves, will be a temporary rise in the value of land and a depression in the value of labor, the poor non-slaveholder will be forced to emigrate, the owner of slaves will be compelled to purchase land to employ and feed his surplus labor, until the State becomes one vast plantation, barely producing enough to sustain, in the cheapest and scantiest manner, her teeming black population.

If it were possible for nations to learn any thing from history or example, we have passing before our eyes, an exact prototype of our future condition in the present situation of Ireland. The selfish legislation of England, by fostering her own industry, and depressing that of Ireland, has filled Ireland with a superabundant population of ignorant and depraved agricultural labourers reduced to the lowest pittance upon which human life can be sustained. And whenever this pittance fails, riot, starvation, and misery, infest the land. The misery and wretchedness of Ireland, hang like a mill-stone upon the crest of England, who may yet find that though power may trample down truth and justice, it cannot infuse life into a palsied and withered limb. Amidst all her tyranny however, England permits the starving Irish to fly to happy and abundant America. The American Government on the contrary, draws a cordon around the slave and his owner, and tells him within those bounds he must remain, live, starve and die.

Had the justice and fairness of the resolutions offered by the Legislature of North Carolina been met by a corresponding feeling in Congress the Missouri line would have been extended to the Pacific Ocean, and a large field opened for the emigration of our black population. Thousands of negro laborers who are now earning but a scanty remuneration to their owners, would have been transferred to California, and North Carolina might have seen a prospect, at some period not very remote, of relieving herself partially of this population, without disturbing the rights of property, and at the same time being enriched by the transfer. For sir, I take it for granted, that no opinion is more erroneous than that the climate and mining business of California, is not adapted to slave labor; it is, of all labour, the one best adapted to that Country and business, and perhaps it is the only species of labour which will develop the great riches of California. The history of the coal mining in England proves moreover that the white laborer so employed is reduced to a more abject state of misery, and suffering, than is known in any portion of the Southern Country.

Should the policy indicated in the late adjustment be adhered to by the Government, the first stone of the wall which is to separate the States of this Union will have been laid, and disunion will not be into kindred and rival republics, but into a white and black empire.

So fully am I convinced, Mr. Speaker, that such is to be the issue of this policy, that I am almost induced to be superstitious and to believe from the array of great and learned men by whom this adjustment was brought about, that some special interposition of providence is to interfere and save my country from the melancholy fate which awaits her. When however I refer to our census tables and see that in all human probability in the short space of 40 years, but a moment in the life of a nation, North Carolina will contain nearly one million of negroes chained down by the inexorable decree of the Federal Government to her poor and exhausted soil, I am reminded by the fate of Ireland, that tyranny is peculiar to no clime, and to no form of Government.

Gloomy as this picture is, its horrors may yet be deepened, and the catastrophe hastened, should the States South of us which have protested most loudly against the policy of the General Government openly resist it, and convince the world that their clamour was not merely a tale told by an idiot,

Full of sound and fury
Signifying nothing.

From all these reasons, believing this Legislature would be grossly deficient in duty to the people of the State, grossly deficient in duty to the Union if she remaincd calm and supine in the present condition of the country, I offer the resolutions on your table.

Let us pass them, and we may arrest the madness and folly of the North and persuade our Southern brethren to remain longer with us and try the virtue of dignified and strenuous remonstrance. Let us convince the North that the word Union has not such a magic influence over us that it has "steeped our senses in forgetfulness" and made us neglect what we owe to our State, ourselves and our posterity.

The first resolution states an historical fact in relation to the formation of our Government which I presume no gentleman here will deny.

The second resolution asserts the only practicable remedy which is left us when all other modes of redress have failed, and I hope when this resolution is attentively considered, it will be found equally as unobjectionable as the first. We have among us, Mr. Speaker, many exceedingly conscientious men who profess great desire to see justice done to the South, but who when any thing practical is offered them, immediately become alarmed and cry out "nullification, give us none of your South Caro'ina doctrines." Now, Sir, I assure these gentlemen that this resolution has not a particle of what they call South Carolina doc'rine; but is the very reverse of it. If I have been able to understand what South Carolina unfortunately sontended for twenty years ago, it was this; she asserted that whilst a member of the Union, she had a constitutional right in her sovereign capacity to nullify an act of Congress, or in other words to decide for herself whether such act should be operative upon any of her citizens. This would be reducing our Government to the old Confederacy and has very properly been pronounced by the whole country an absurdity. I regretted this movement of South Carolina at the time, and told some of the actors in it, that they would do more injury by it to the cause of the rights of the States, than all the arguments of the Federal party since the adoption of the constitution. And such has been the case, it has not only deprived South Carolina of that weight her counsels are fairly entitled to, from the ability of her statesmen, but many persons are running into the other extreme, and denying to the States all authority whatever; in fact making them nothing more than mere corporations to be dissolved, or rearranged, at any time to suit the pleasure of the General Government. It is the part of wisdom in us of the South, to let bygones be by-gones, let us examine what are our rights as separate communities and manfully assert them.

To satisfy these timid gentlemen that this second resolution contains nothing of the odious South Carolina doctrine I will read what Daniel Webster said in his celebrated reply to Mr. Hayne in 1830 and I hope that will satisfy them, as they cannot suspect Mr. Webster, of any leaning towards nullification.

Mr. Webster, in commenting on the Virginia resolutions, of 1798, behind which Mr. Hayne endeavored to shelter himself, used the following words, "That resolution declares that in case of the dangerous exercise of powers not granted by the general government, the States may interpose to arrest the progress of the evil. But how interpose, and what does this declaration purport?—Does it mean no more than that there may be extreme cases, in which the people, in any mode of assembling, may resist usurpation and relieve themselves from a tyrannical Government? No one will deny this. Such resistance is not only acknowledged to be just, in America, but in England also. Blackstone admits as much in the theory, and practice too, of the English constitution. We, sir, who oppose the Carolina doctrines, do not deny, that the people may, if they choose, throw off any Government when it becomes oppressive and intolerable and erect a better in its stead. We all know that civil institutions are established for the public benefit, and that when they cease to answer the ends of their existence they may be changed." Now, sir, I might stop here and close discussion on this resolution, with the words of Mr. Webster just read, for, the resolution means nothing more, and certainly no gentleman will contend that there are securities for the public liberty, both in the theory and practice of the British constitution, which the people of North Carolina have surrendered. If they have, they make an unfortunate exchange from a foreign king to a government controlled by abolition fanatics. I will, however, trouble the Senate a little further on this second resolution in vindication of the intention and meaning of those who formed and adopted the constitution of the United States.

The tenth article of the amendment of the constitution of the United States says "the powers not delegated to the United States nor prohibited by it to the States, are reserved to the States respectively or to the people." Why reserve these powers if it was not intended or expected the people or States should protect themselves from aggression? If they have no right to protect themselves effectively, the article means nothing, and it was folly and surplusage to insert it in the constitution. I have, however, too much respect for the wisdom of those who framed that instrument to entertain any such suspicion. They thought, no doubt, with Charles Fox, who once said the right to dethrone a British sovereign for the benefit of the people, certainly existed, but should be talked about as little as possible. We know, moreover, Mr. Speaker, that many of the States, particularly Virgina, New York and Massachusetts, in adopting the constitution of the United States, expressed in their acts of ratification the same sentiment.

Massachusetts in her act of ratification used these explicit words, "That it be explicitly declared that all powers not expressly delegated by the aforesaid constitution are reserved to the several States, to be by them exercised."

(To be concluded in our next.)

DAILY ISSUE.

Thursday Morning, Dec. 12th.

YESTERDAY.

Almost the entire sitting of the House, on yesterday, was consumed in the prolongation of the debate on Mr. Bridgers' Resolutions. It will be seen that Gen. Saunders was still addressing the House, at the moment of adjournment, and that he will resume his remarks this morning.

The late hour at which the House adjourned, and the great length of the debate, preclude, of course, any sketch of, or comment upon, the nature of it, to-day. We reserve both for a future occasion.

Mr. Clarke, in the Senate, and Mr. Avery, in the House, introduced additional resolutions on the slavery question, as from the minority of the Committee to whom that subject was referred. These resolutions affirm the right (whether Constitutional or Revolutionary, we are not informed,) of a State to secede from the Union, under certain circumstances, the occasion and the circumstances to be judged of by the people of the State, in Convention assembled. The report was full and embraced many views as to the theory of our Government, the Constitutional rights of the respective States, and the duties of the citizens of a State.

We have been unable yet to obtain, much less investigate, the Report and Resolutions submittted by the majority of the Committee. We believe the following, however, to be the substance of the resolutions recommended: The preamble affirms the unaltered attachment of the people of North Carolina to the Union and the Constitution; and declares their willingness to abide by the compromise measures adopted by the last Congress, though some of them may not be considered by a portion of the people of the South, as meting out equal justice to the Southern section of our country.—The Resolutions express the determination of North Carolina to adhere to them as a whole, but if Congress should repeal, or partially modify the fugitive slave bill, so as to make its provisions inoperative, or should abolish slavery in the District of Columbia, or interdict the slave trade between the States, or refuse to admit into the Union any new State because of its recognition of slavery—on the happening of either event, the Governor is required to convene the Legislature to take into consideration the mode and manner of redress. One of the resolutions proposes to lay a tax on all articles brought into this State of the growth, manufacture or product of the non-slaveholding States.

The above is a mere outline of the action of the Committee. The various Reports, &c., have been ordered to be printed and made the special order of the day for Monday next. As soon as we can procure them, we will endeavor to lay them in extenso before our numerous readers.

INGENIOUS INVENTION.

We called in at the Telegraph Office, on yesterday, to see a new invention, called the "Hotel Telegraph," originated and patented by Mr. JOSHUA E. LUMSDEN, of this City, well known for his fine mechanical genius. We do not know when we have been more strongly impressed with the great importance, usefulness, and uniqueness, too, of any invention that this age of Progress in art and science has produced.

The apparatus works upon the principle of the Magnetic Telegraph—the wires from the Battery, (placed in some out-of-the-way place,) connecting with the plate, in the office of the Hotel, on which the drop numbers are fixed, and radiating to every quarter of the House. The slightest pressure on the knob end of the wire, in each room, communicating, as it does, with a magnet attached to the number of the room on the plate, causes the number to drop, while an additional contrivance strikes the bell. The whole instrument presents a beautiful and ornamental appearance.

The apparatus, like the Enunciator, now in common use in the first-class Hotels of the country, requires but one bell in calling a servant from any room in an Establishment, (no matter how many there may be,) by simultaneously exhibiting the number of the room and striking the bell once. Its advantages over all others seem to be,

1st. In fitting up, it requires no cranks for turnings in the wires, while the wires may pursue the shortest convenient course.

2nd. When once put up, the wires have no motion, of course, and are therefore free from wear and tear and from getting deranged.

☞ The Directors of the North Carolina Rail Road Company, meet in this City, to-day, for the purpose of receiving the Report of the Engineer, and taking action as to the location of the route.

☞ We are indebted to Mr. TURNER for a copy of that most useful publication, the "American Almanac for 1851." See advertisement.

☞ We give a second instalment of Mr. Shepard's Speech, this morning. The remainder shall appear to-morrow, when we shall also resume our comments upon the doctrine of SECESSION. The whole Speech will appear in our Semi-Weekly of Saturday.

STATE LEGISLATURE.

SENATE.

WEDNESDAY, Dec. 11.

A message was sent to the House, stating the passage of the engrossed bill from the House entitled a bill to incorporate the Greenville and Raleigh Plank Road Company, with sundry amendments.

Mr. Caldwell, of Mecklenburg, presented the memorial of sundry citizens of the County of Mecklenburg praying for the passage of a law, subjecting to taxation certain articles manufactured out of the State. Referred to the Committee on Finance.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.

The House met according to adjournment.

A message was received from the Senate with the following engrossed bills:

A bill to incorporate the Murfreesboro' Joint Stock Building Company. A bill to amend the act of 1830-'31 to incorporate the town of Statesville. A bill to incorporate Fulton Lodge, No. 99, at Salisbury. A bill to authorise Sea Board and Roanoke Rail Road to issue bonds.

Mr. Barnes moved to suspend rules, and put the last bill on its second reading. Mr. Taylor said that he came here to legislate for North Carolina and not for Virginia, and hoped that the rules would not be suspended. The rules were suspended, and the bill passed its second reading.

Mr. Eaton, a memorial, which was referred.

Mr. Hill, of Caswell, presented a memorial praying that advertisements of Sales of lands, taxes &c. be published in adjacent towns to where such sales, &c. are to take place.

Mr. Eaton introduced a bill to incorporate —— Division of Sons of Temperance in Warrenton. Referred.

Also, a Bill to incorporate Muchuena Lodge, No. 22, I. O. O. F., in Warrenton.

Mr. McMillan, a Bill for a public road through Ashe.

Mr. Bogle, a Bill for a new County by name of Williamson.

Mr. Fleming, a Bill to amend an act of 1848 and '9, laying off a road in Cherokee. After some little sparring between Messrs. Hayes and Fleming, referred to Joint Select Committee on Cherokee Bonds.

Mr. Walton, a Bill to incorporate Piedmont Plank Road Company. Referred.

Mr. Avery introduced sundry resolutions on the subject of Slavery, which were ordered to be laid on the table and printed.

The order of the day—being the various reports and Bills relative to the amendments of the Constitution—coming up, Mr. Fleming moved to postpone, until Friday.

12 O'CLOCK.

The unfinished business of yesterday coming up, Mr. Pope withdrew his resolutions and substituted others.

Mr. McLean continued his motion for an indefinite postponement of the whole question.

Mr. Cotton called for the reading of the Resolutions separately, and defined his position. He declared himself an Internal Improvement man of the original stamp, and that he wished to see the resources of the State developed, but was opposed to the Rail Road Bill of 1848-'9. He did not believe the charter was obtained by a proper vote, and did not believe that $3,000,000 would build the Road. He was opposed to the State's stock jobbing for a company or companies, and preferred that individual enterprise should perfect all these works. In fine, he assured the Legislature, that while he was no repudiator, (for, rather than have the stain of repudiation placed upon Chatham Connty, he would lose one of these "mould boards," meaning one of his ears) still he was forced to believe that the people did not acquiesce in the movement. He was open however, to conviction, and if convinced, would leave his platform, as speedily as Lot left Sodom.

Mr. Brogden next addressed the House at great length in support of the resolutions, and, without concluding, gave way to a motion to adjourn until half past 3 o'clock.

HALF PAST THREE.

Mr. Brogden continued his remarks, and was followed by Gen. Saunders, who addressed the House for upwards of an hour and a half, in opposition to the Resolutions, and in vindication of the Internal Improvement system generally. Without concluding, Gen. Saunders gave way to a motion to adjourn until to-morrow ten o'clock.

In the report of yesterday's proceedings, the work "turnpike" was omitted after "Hickory Nut Gap," in our notice of a bill introduced by Mr. Farmer.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9th, 1850.

Vermont Senators Denouncing their Legislature—Repeal of the late Resolves.

The act of the Vermont Legislature is universally condemned here in Washington, and by none more so than the Senators and members from Vermont. This is a most fortunate sign.—Judge Phelps, a gentleman of as much legal learning and philosophy as any man in the country, and an ornament from New England in the Senate of the United States, pronounces it as entirely unconstitutional and void, and his opinion on that subject is worth more than that of the whole Legislature of Vermont and the Governor to boot.—Mr. Upham equally denounces the act of the Legislature as unwise and unnecessary. All the members, without distinction of party, regret it, aad there is but little doubt that it will be promptly repealed at the next session of the Legislature. Some five years ago the Legislature of Vermont passed a similar act—only not quite so wanton and absurd as the present—but when the Supreme Court of the State decided it unconstitutional, it was quickly repealed. This will, of course, be done with the present act a fortiori.

It is one of the privileges of the Vermont Legislature to be for ever green as their native mountains. By a sort of tacit agreement, no man is permitted to represent his town or village more than two years, so that it is impossible for the members to acquire any legislative experience, or to judge of the responsibility attached to their votes. By this species of greenness, the act, so offensive and useless in its bearings, was no doubt passed, with scarcely half the members knowing what they were voting for. Rotation in office is a very good principle, provided members can be had, ready made, as pantaloons in a slop-shop.

The Secretary of State, it is rumored, has been instructed by the President to address a letter to Governor Seabrook, of South Carolina, somewhat similar in contents to that addressed, at the proper time, to Gov. Bell, of Texas. I should not be surprised if there were some foundation for the rumor. If any such letter has been addressed to Gov. Seabrook, I venture to assert that it was mild, respectful and conciliatory in its tone, yet firm and Statesmanlike; doing full justice, not only to the Governor, but also to the President of the United States. While we may hope that the Governor of South Carolina may not transcend his own duty, we may feel certain that the President will not shrink from the obligation imposed upon him by the constitution.

A FRIEND OF THE UNION.

"Oh don't do that till I am dead."—The Atlanta (Ga.) Republic says:

"On the day of the meeting of the secessionists at Kingston, a Revolutionary soldier returned to his residence in Cobb county, on the railroad, though his eyes were so dim that he could not very well see. He was told they were trying to get the people to dissolve or secede from the Union. Whereupon, he drooped his withered face, and seemed to be in deep distress for one or two minutes; after which he raised up his head, and with a faltering voice said, "Oh, don't do that till I am dead!" While he uttered these words, the large tears chased each other down his wayworn cheeks. He was told that a great number of men would try to prevent them, to which he replied "Don't let them do that till I am dead!"

CASE OF CHAPLIN.—The Washington News states that the grand jury has found true bills against Chaplin for "stealing and carrying away" the negroes of Messrs. Toombs and Stephens, of Georgia. A presentment has also been made against the driver of the hack or carriage in which the negro was conveyed.

UNION MEETING AT NEW ORLEANS.

The New Orleans papers give enthusiastic accounts of the great Union meeting which took place at the St. Charles Theatre in that city on the evening of the 27th ult. The house was crammed, and a separate meeting of some five thousand was organized in the street outside. The speeches of Senators Downs and Foote were received with the most emphatic manifestations of approval. From each we make an extract testifying to the sincerity of the President's determination to maintain the Fugitive law.

Mr. Downs said: He was confident the President would execute the law in all its extent. He had opposed the President as a party man and would do it again, but he had it from Mr. Fillmore's own mouth that he would carry out the compromise measures faithfully. He was convinced the North would sustain its promises to the South, and he thought that whilst our Northern brethren were doing their best in our behalf, it came from us with a very bad grace to let them know that we suspected their faith, doubted their intentions, and were doing what we could to enervate their efforts in our favor. These remarks were repeatedly interrupted by prolonged and enthusiastic cheering.

Gen. Foote said: The President will undoubtedly maintain the compromise. He will execute the Fugitive Slave law to the letter. He advised its passage months before it did pass, and the Cabinet will go with him throughout. The law will never be repealed. If it were, if the compromise were repealed, the South would be bound to secede, but peaceably. It would not then rise up as a faction or under the guidance of military chieftains who sigh to add fresh laurels to those they won in Mexico, but it would rise as a people, oppressed, and determined to resist oppression.

STATE OF INDIANA.

To the Editors of the National Intelligencer.

INDIANAPOLIS, (INDIANA,) Dec. 3, 1850.

SIRS:—I have the honor to transmit herewith a copy of a Preamble and Resolutions this day adopted by the Delegates of the People of the State of Indiana, assembled in Convention to take into consideration the organic law of said State. The vote on the adoption was, ayes 90, noes 26. I forward you this, presuming it may be of some interest to you and your readers.

Very respectfully, yours.

Whereas the Congress of the United States passed at its last session a series of acts commonly called the compromise measures; and whereas certain misguided individuals, in various States of the Union, have expressed their determination to resist a portion of its laws: Therefore,

Be it resolved, That, in the opinion of this Convention, the common sentiment of the people of Indiana sustains and endorses, in their general features and intention, the said series of compromise measures as passed by Congress, and recognises in the success of those measores an earnest of security and perpetuity to our glorious Union.

Resolved, That whatever may be the opinions of individuals as to the wisdom or policy of the details of one or any of the acts of Congress above referred to, it is the duty of all good citizens to conform to their requisitions, and to carry out in good faith the conditions of that compromise on the subject of domestic slavery which is coeval with the Federal Constitution.

Resolved, That a copy of this preamble and resolutions be transmitted to the Governors of each State and Territory of the United States, and to each of our Senators and Representatives in Congress.
